Softball Club Enters Playdowns

The Didsbury Softball Club has entered the provincial playdowns and will play their first game at Didsbury against the Calgary Hillbillies tonight (Thursday) at 8:30, a rearrangement having been necessary from the original date, billed for Friday night.

The other two games against the same club will be played at Calgary next Wednesday. Fifteen teams have been entered in the central division.

The Didsbury boys will depend on Roman Holub and Neil Grant to do the pitching.

On Sunday last a number of members of the Canadian Legion and young men of the town joined the Voluntary Blood Transfusion Service and had their blood tested under direction of Major Leyton and assistants from Calgary. Eighteen men were tested and if their blood is found satisfactory they will be enrolled as voluntary blood donors. The service is entirely voluntary and the donors are actuated by a pure desire to be of service to their fellow men.

Sylvan Lake seemed to be the mecca for Didsbury folk during the weekend. Among those seen on the beach were Mr. and Mrs. Hawkes, Mr. and Mrs. Spence and Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fisher and family, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett and family, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Brown and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gooder, Mrs. McCoy and Jessie, Mr. and Mrs. John Hislop, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Edwards and family, Mr. and Mrs. Phillipson, Mr. and Mrs. Foote, Al. Thomas and Frank Durrer.

Junior Board of Trade Notes

The Junior Board of Trade has drawn up a number of committees, each an entity within the section.

The sports committee has as its objectives, to promote among the youth a spirit of good fellowship and co-operation in sport and athletic enterprise. In such a way, organized sport will develop character and give the individual a wider knowledge of athletic activities in general. We endorse the advancement of playgrounds for children and we will strive to stimulate interest toward this end.

There will be a meeting of the Public speaking committee Thursday evening (tonight) in the Public School at 8:30 sharp. So, all ye potential speakers and orators, turn out on time. We're all beginners, so don't feel at all retiring.

On Thursday evening, Aug. 4th, at 8:30, in the Legion Hall the Junior Board of Trade will be "at home" to the Senior Board of Trade and all senior business men of town and district. This will be a general "get-together" and the older fellows are cordially invited. Lunch will be served.

Co-operative Field Day At Olds S.-of-A.

The field day at the Olds School of Agriculture on July 30th under the auspices of the Mountain View Co-operative Livestock Marketing Association will be of interest to all farmers.

It is very rarely that three such prominent figures in agriculture are seen on the program at any one field day.

Both the Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, and the Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, Hon. D. B. Mullen, together with Dean Howe, of the University of Alberta, will give addresses on different phases of agriculture.

Every farmer in the district should make an effort to attend.

At The Movies

"Tom Sawyer"—Colour Catches Spirit of Twain Classic

The immortal Tom Sawyer created by Mark Twain, and beloved by millions the world over, has been brought to vivid life on the screen by David O. Selznick, in a magnificent Technicolor production "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," which appears at the Opera House this Friday and Saturday.

The celebrated boy hero is recreated in the flesh by Tommy Kelly, the 12-year-old, who was discovered as a Bronx school boy by talent scouts who tested and viewed more than 25,000 boys in a search that lasted nearly a year and covered the entire United States, for an unknown to play Tom Sawyer in the Selznick production of the Mark Twain classic.

Other members of the impressive cast are May Robson, Walter Brennan and Jackie Moran.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Boorman and family left on Thursday for a motor trip to Waterton Lakes and other points.

Trees To The Rescue

With the drought now definitely broken over the greater part of the prairie provinces and prospects of a period of more abundant moisture apparently bright, the time appears to have arrived when further consideration might well be given to the advantages of a definite and well coordinated program of tree planting throughout sparsely treed and tree denuded areas as a rehabilitation measure.

It is noted, of course, that tree planting is included as one of the items in the rehabilitation program outlined two or three years ago as part of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation program but to date comparatively little has been heard of this item, attention so far having been mainly centred on the construction of dugouts, dams and minor irrigation projects.

Undoubtedly tree planting will follow in many of the districts now being served or about to be served by recently constructed irrigation schemes as a matter of course, but there are still many areas and individual farms which for topographical and other reasons do not lend themselves to watering by feasible irrigation projects, but in these areas, also, there appears to be no reason now why tree planting should not be pushed ahead to the extent that available time and power permits.

A Valuable Aid

That trees, wherever they can be made to serve the purpose can play an important part in farm economics and can be made to go a long way, sometimes even under adverse conditions, towards ensuring sustenance on the farm has been amply demonstrated in many individual cases, as witness the following extract from the annual report of the Canadian Forestry Association, dealing with southern Saskatchewan conditions:

"Every district visited furnished striking proof of the possibility of the southern farmer becoming self-sustaining so far as home food supplies are concerned. Had the farm garden been a universal policy instead of being completely overlooked, or at best, in most cases, a haphazard venture, countless millions in food costs during the past nine years could have been avoided. Every farmer can grow his own needs anywhere throughout the south country, and no objective short of this is good enough, and nothing but sound educational progress can achieve it.

"At Piapot, on the main line of the C.P.R., in an area of nine failures of wheat, we visited a man who inside his walls of trees raised all his own needs this year—250 bushels of potatoes, all vegetables, many jars of small fruits, melons and even plums and apples. Every farmer in that area could have done the same had he a few years ago given the need of such things proper consideration."

Can Supply Requirements

Whether or not the Piapot farmer referred to in the foregoing extract had sufficient water available for his garden to take the place of rainfall during years when moisture was not sufficient to raise wheat crops, the Forestry Association's report does not say, but it does at least demonstrate that in years of normal precipitation every farmer in the country could supply his own table requirements practically the year round, provided he has the requisite shelter in the form of trees and hedges.

It is too late, of course, to plant trees this year, but it is not yet too late to prepare soil for a shelter belt to be planted next year; indeed, this advance cultivation and preparation is a requisite to a successful planting. This, as no doubt, most farmers know is stressed by the authorities of the Dominion Forestry farm who supply millions of trees free to farmers throughout the west every spring.

Mortality among man-planted trees in the drought areas of the west has been high during the drought period, but, at the same time, it is surprising how many trees have, with some care and attention, withstood the ravages of a long period of dry weather. They have not made much top growth, it is true, but they have rooted deeper and deeper to reach the dwindling moisture reserves and now these trees are responding again to more copious precipitation.

Opportunity Again Here

The experience of others demonstrates that the mortality of the drought years need not act as a deterrent to the planting of trees on the farm. On the contrary it goes to show that, even during a dry period, they are of immense benefit and with the drought now presumably broken it should afford every encouragement to the individual farmer to take active steps to provide at least for some of his needs in future years, by establishing a good shelter belt at the first opportunity his circumstances permit.

It should further be pointed out that there are many farmers, even in the drought area, who had sufficient water to maintain a garden, if in earlier years they had provided the necessary shelter for vegetables and fruit trees. This omission can now be repaired in many cases and with the return of a period of greater precipitation it looks as if the time has arrived when trees should be planted more abundantly.

Wheat Market In Europe

Want To Accumulate Reserve Stocks In Event Of War

Foreign trade experts of the United States agriculture department said that unsettled political conditions in Europe might open new and larger markets for surplus American wheat during the next 12 months.

Prospects for larger sales in Europe were indicated, they said, by the recent decision of Great Britain and The Netherlands to accumulate reserve stocks of the grain in preparation for a possible outbreak of war. Foreign trade authorities said other European powers were known to be considering similar action.

The Netherlands has begun establishment of a system for maintaining at least two months' supply of wheat at all times. Grain importers and dealers would be held responsible for maintaining such stocks with subsidy assistance from the government. Little is known about the British plan.

Trade experts estimated that European wheat imports for consumption needs during the next year would be about 450,000,000 bushels or about 50,000,000 more than during the last 12 months. Reserve stocks were not included in the estimates.

The proportion of possible reserve purchases of wheat in America would depend largely on prices, officials said, pointing out that if American prices were above the world level, buyers might go elsewhere.

Official crop reports indicate that Canada and Argentina may produce 125,000,000 bushels more than last year. Trade experts said that amount probably would be sufficient to meet the most optimistic increase in world import requirements.

Must Develop North

Should Be Utilized To Hold It For The White Man

Canada must develop and utilize its northland to hold it for the white man, W. D. Albright, superintendent of the Dominion experimental farm substation, Beaverlodge, Alta., warned the American Association for the Advancement of Science in annual convention.

Like Russia, Canada must look to the north and the United States will follow its progress with satisfaction, he said. "For a particular reason of her own very proper concern, the United States must be interested in the Dominion's conquest of the north."

"In the modern surge of racial expansion, in the mad quest for economic self-sufficiency, in the race of armaments and in the unscrupulous scramble for a 'place in the sun', which seems often to mean territorial expansion, is it to be supposed that the northern third of this continent can be held by the white man unless developed and utilized by him? What of Asia?"

The Spirit Of China

Was Shown In Gift Sent By Madame Chiang Kai-Shek

In June, 1917, a war year for the United States, the present Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, as a daughter of the famous Chinese Soong family, was graduated from Wellesley College.

June 18, 1938, Mme. Chiang's classmates held their annual reunion on the shores of Lake Waban. But 1938 is a war year for China, and Mme. Chiang could not attend.

Instead she sent a gift of silver spoons, which were used at a reunion tea. While she sent a message that through her gift she would feel that she was sharing in the festivities, she added that the spoons are "to show that a spoon may be licked, but China can't."

Mme. Chiang's patriotism is characteristic of the new China which she and her generalissimo husband have helped to build, a new China which with old stoicism is doggedly defending itself in a war still undeclared. Her humor and love of subtle parable are likewise characteristic.

The western world should realize that these racial traits are not the least important of the weapons with which China fights an aggressor.—Detroit Free Press.

Full Operation Delayed

Shortage of equipment has held back full operation of Trans-Canada Air Lines, Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, told the House of Commons. By Sept. 1 he hoped to see full operation of passenger, mail and express services between Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal.

How The Language Grows

Words Coined By Inventors Soon Come Into General Use

The word "televisor" was coined by J. L. Baird in 1925 to describe apparatus for television and was registered by him as a trade mark. On account, however, of the general adoption of the word in the United States and elsewhere to denote any kind of television apparatus, Baird Television, Ltd., has decided to abandon its registration as a trade mark, so that in future there will be no restriction upon the use of the word in connection with television. "Televisor" may thus be used in future as freely as "telegraph" and "telephone."

The word telegraph was first applied by Chappe in France, in 1792, to his invention of the semaphore system of transmitting messages to a distance; and the word telephone was used by Sédre in 1828 for a system of signaling by musical sounds. It was employed in 1844 to describe a powerful wind instrument to convey signals at sea during foggy weather. Philipp Reis, in 1861, called his ingenious instrument a telephone, so that he may be regarded as the inventor of the name of the modern instrument. Alexander Graham Bell adopted the word in 1876 for his "Electrical Speaking Telephone."—From Nature.

Automatic Observations At North And South Pole Predicted For The Future

Establishment of automatic robot weather observers at the North and South Poles, on mountain tops, and on isolated islands to predict the weather for a week or more was forecast by Dr. W. R. Gregg chief of the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Addressing the American Association for the Advancement of Science at its summer meeting, Dr. Gregg declared a new type of international scientific co-operation is emerging between Democratic, Fascist, Communist and other forms of governments to make the earth's weather less of a hazard in carrying on human activities.

The newest instrument for gathering weather data is the radio meteorograph, a device sent aloft by balloon which automatically registers its height, humidity of the air and temperature as it ascends into the stratosphere five miles and more above the earth's surface, Dr. Gregg declared.

Plans are already being made, he declared, to set up robot weather observers near the North and South Poles, on mountain peaks, and on distant islands near the equator to make similar automatic weather observations and send them by radio to a central weather observatory for transmission to all parts of the world.

Such automatic weather stations, which would make continuous records of atmospheric conditions, would be powered by electric batteries and would require rare inspections by passing ships or aeroplane visits, Dr. Gregg said.

Thus, the Soviet Polar expedition which drifted from the North Pole southward last winter to study weather and ice conditions, might have set up an automatic weather station and left it to do the laborious weather recording.

By the use of such instruments it would be possible for a radio weather station hundreds of miles away to contact the automatic weather observer, set it in action, and record its observations almost as easily as dialing a telephone number in a large city, the American meteorologist said.

Should such an instrument be drifting on an ice floe or on a special platform or boat, in which case the atmospheric conditions during hurricanes or other storms—never before fully recorded—might be observed, it would be simple to determine its position at sea almost exactly by observing the direction from which its signals come at two or more stations on land, Dr. Gregg added.

Fed Up With News

This Reporter Wanted To Think About Something Else

We just thought we'd tell you that: There are 48 nations in the world still at peace. A large number of autoists drove safely and courteously through Vancouver streets yesterday. Several million Canadians are working and drawing regular pay cheques. We saw people laughing this morning. The mangle-wurtzel crop is good this year. Most people really like spinach. A girl and boy sat on a Victory Square bench at lunch-time yesterday, and lost track of the world around them as they looked in each other's eyes. This isn't news, but we thought we'd tell you. Sometimes we get so fed up with news that we like to stop and think of things like these.—Vancouver Sun.

Hints For The Thrifty

A book on thrift contains the following: "It is practical to change the position of one's shoelaces at least twice a week. This way you can double the lifetime of your shoelace and save money." Also: "If the sides of your box of matches are worn out while you still have a few matches in the box, strike the match vertically across instead of horizontally."

Ducks floating down the Niagara River frequently do not realize the speed at which they are drifting. Suddenly they are in the swirls near the brink of the Falls and go over to their death, unable to fly out of the thundering waters.

Nothing Really Happens

What People Call Prizefight Does Not Mean Anything

There are all sorts of theories as to the fascination of prizefights, and no doubt most of them are correct. The most intriguing of them is the notion that most of us would like to hit somebody and don't dare. This suppressed impulse is bad for us, though not so bad as giving way to it would ordinarily be. When we go to a prizefight we identify ourselves with one of the fighters. Then we identify the other fighter with the policeman who gave us a ticket, the man who shoved us aside in the subway, our employer, our venerable parent, who once spanked us unjustly, or perhaps with the New Deal, Wall Street, the capitalistic system or the boy who went home from the church sociable 40 years ago with our best girl. We also make bets. Nothing makes one so vehement a partisan, or demands so little psychological analysis, as the act of laying a bet. Maybe the simplest explanation, as is often the case, is the best one. It may be immoral to win bets, but it is agreeable.

Setting all these considerations aside, a prizefight, or indeed almost any kind of athletic contest, has one supreme advantage. In a world and at a time when almost all the news we get is fraught with significance, the prizefight doesn't mean anything. It doesn't mean that the Nazi philosophy is good or bad, that the Negro race is or is not rising in the economic scale, or anything else. It has to do with such elements as muscular strength, courage, indifference to pain, sense of balance, reaction time and the like, which may be combined in any member of any race at any time. The heavyweight championship of the world is a fiction. Prizefighting is a business. The million-dollar crowd in the arena loses itself for a little while in enjoyable fury and suspense. But tomorrow will be exactly what it would otherwise have been. Nothing has really happened.—New York Times.

Chose Same Location

One Chimney Swift Returns To Old Nesting Ground

The Canadian Resources Bulletin says at least one Chimney Swift prefers to return to the same nesting site each spring. On October 11, 1936, at Atlanta, Georgia, a Chimney Swift, which was migrating with many others on their way farther south for the winter, was marked with official leg band No. 37-30249. This bird was caught and released at its nest near Sundridge, Ontario, about June 24, 1937, and it was again captured and liberated at the same nesting location about June 3, 1938.

This Swift makes long trips from nesting to wintering ground and vice versa. Comparatively little is known about the wintering ground of the Chimney Swift, but it is believed to be in the northern part of South America. Already many thousands of Chimney Swifts have been banded by ornithologists, in co-operation with both the Canadian and United States Governments, and perhaps banding may ultimately tell all about Chimney Swift travels. Other species of native wild birds have also been banded in great numbers with a view to obtaining exact information relative to their general life histories.

Memorial Scholarship

An Amelia Earhart Fund To Assist Young Women

An Amelia Earhart Memorial scholarship fund was established by Zonta International at its annual convention at Banff, as it was revealed the renowned aviatrix had insisted on doing all in her power to aid advancement of aeronautics.

Before voting to establish the fund, the last letter Miss Earhart wrote to the Zonta club, to which she belonged, was read. Miss Earhart was lost in July, 1937, in the South Pacific while on a round-the-world flight.

The memorial fund will be for assistance of young women engineering students having a special interest in aeronautics. 2263

Modern Highway To India

Motorists Can Soon Travel In Comfort From Bombay To London

The Indian Empire Press Union states that a modern highway linking Great Britain, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Turkey, Syria, Iraq, Iran, Afghanistan and India will soon be an accomplished fact and it will be possible to motor in comfort the 8,000 miles from Bombay to London.

At a luncheon given by the Western India Automobile Association in Bombay, H. E. Ormerod, president of the association, said it was proposed that the road which at present had been completed as far as Istanbul, except for a short stretch, should be extended through Antioch and Syria, and then on through Iraq, Iran and Afghanistan to India, and in this manner through Delhi to Calcutta and Bombay.

A. H. C. Sykes, secretary of the association, said that in 1933 the Automobile Association surveyed the whole length of the route from London to Istanbul in collaboration with a British car expedition. With the enthusiastic support of the Alliance Internationale de Tourisme, a group of motoring organizations having now an aggregate membership of over 10 millions, and with the wholehearted co-operation of the governments of the countries through which the route passed, the work of reconstruction and modernization was soon commenced. It has proceeded rapidly since and it is now possible to reach Istanbul from London in five days' easy motoring.

For Happier Homes

Making The Husband Take A Hand At Washing The Dishes

If a husband expects his wife, who is a job-holder, too, to cook the dinner, he should wash the dishes—and the result would be divorce depression and a boom in business, in the opinion of Mrs. Harriette Quisenberry, of El Paso, Texas, president of Altrusa International Woman's Executive and Professional Club.

Here, she said, is how it would work out:

"Man, prone to look for the easiest way to do things, would quickly tire of washing greasy dishes—and greasy pans. He would go out and buy a mechanical dishwasher. Boom would go that business.

"And likewise would go the business in all work-saving gadgets, such as the latest thing in dishmops and grease cutters.

"A working wife would appreciate her spouse's recognition of his responsibility to help with the housework.

"That would make for happier homes and less divorce."

It is always profitable to have an actress selling kisses at a fete, states an organizer. For one thing, it ensures that many wives will come along, when otherwise they might not have bothered.

Empire Migration To British Dominions Is Urged By Overseas Settlement Board

In urgent phrase the Overseas Settlement Board recommended action be taken without loss of time to encourage migration from the United Kingdom to the Dominions.

It dismisses any idea migration can be regarded as a solution for unemployment in the United Kingdom. From a careful survey of population trends the conclusion is drawn it is no longer axiomatic that extensive migration is in the interests of the United Kingdom if those interests could be considered in isolation from those of the Dominions.

The board was appointed in February, 1936, under chairmanship of the Marquess of Hartington, now the Duke of Devonshire, to advise the secretary of state for the dominions.

Its report pictures the Empire with a white population of 70,000,000, of whom about 40,000,000 are collected in the United Kingdom. While the total population of the world has expanded during the 20th century at a greater rate than during the 19th, the population of the United Kingdom was growing older in composition and unless the trend was reversed there would be almost immediately a decline in population at the younger working ages and, therefore, of those available for migration.

The dominions generally also show a rapidly falling birth rate, although there has recently been a slight recovery and they have amongst them the lowest death rates in the world, so their population, too, is steadily growing. The seriousness of the situation is obvious from the social and economic life of the community and also from the point of view of defence.

The report makes the novel suggestion that if the United Kingdom cannot supply settlers in sufficient numbers to provide all the additional population for which the circumstances of the dominions call, the admission of a carefully regulated flow of foreign immigrants of assimilable types, preferably from those countries whose inhabitants "sprung originally from the same stock as ourselves and who share our outlook in many directions, has much to commend itself."

"The incorporation of assimilable settlers, whether of northern or other European extraction, would itself be not only the source of permanent enrichment to the life of the dominions but would at the same time increase their capacity for absorbing immigrants from this country," the report goes on.

"It should moreover, lead to increased trade between those countries whence immigrants go and the country in which they settle, and should thereby make a contribution towards what we regard as an urgent need of the world to-day, a more open door to trade and population."

The report recognized the policy to be adopted in regard to non-British European immigrants is entirely a question for the dominion governments.

Migration, it continues, should not be dealt with as a matter of bargaining. It should not be directly related to the question of increased markets for dominion produce, nor is it possible to set off introduction of immigrants against introduction of a given amount of capital.

Direct action on the part of the government of the United Kingdom for promotion of a flow of capital into the dominions would not be justified as a measure of migration policy. If opportunities for the investment of capital from the United Kingdom are to be created it must be as a result of the policy of the dominion governments themselves.

Rapid progress in secondary production in the dominions should have an important effect on the capacity of the dominions to absorb migrants from the United Kingdom, but every care should be taken so to direct any policy of assisted migration as to avoid giving the least cause for any apprehension on the part of Labor in the dominions that the standards of living are being endangered.

The board holds financial assistance under the Empire Settlement Act should not be given to organized schemes of land settlement and development, save in very exceptional circumstances and only then if the dominion government concerned approves the scheme and is prepared to co-operate financially or otherwise in carrying it out.

Reliance should primarily be placed on infiltration, namely settlement on land or otherwise of single individuals or families in already existing communities.

Migration, it is pointed out, is a matter of attraction, not compulsion, and if the dominions are to obtain the United Kingdom migrants they need, it lies with them to create conditions which will prove an attraction. Unemployment insurance and other social services in the United Kingdom have created a sense of social security and stability which militates against the inclination to migrate.

An Important Problem

Canada Should See That Rural Churches Are Maintained

The St. Mary's, Ont., Journal-Argus sees scene in country communities changing, and tells this story: The average "country corner" to-day serves as an index of the change that has come over the rural community during the past generation.

In conversation with an aged lady who has spent her life in a neighboring hamlet, she recalled the other day that during her girlhood there were three taverns at this country corner. There were also three churches. To-day there are neither churches nor taverns. The blacksmithy and wagon shop are gone but in this settlement, with a population of fifty people, there are no less than three gas stations. To-day the farmers have cars to get about in and the changed condition does not deprive them of blacksmith's service or the products sold by taverns which are within easy driving distance.

The institution that is really missed in the community, according to our aged friend, is the church. Of course people could drive to town to church just as they come to town for other reasons, but the fact is that in the community in question only two or three families go to church. The neighborhood is made up of decent and law-abiding people. A generation ago their parents were the pillars of the community church. They are benefitting in many ways from sound early training. But what about the children who are growing up in their homes? Are they losing anything vital by their lack of connection with the Christian Church? If they are, and we surely think they are, in the next few years Canada will begin to pay dearly for its lack of solution of the rural church problem.

There are no islands in the Pacific between Hawaii and the coastal region of America.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE

Director "Crop Testing Plan"

This is a proud year for one of the oldest and purest races of white people in the world. I mean our good friends the Swedes.

1938 is the 300th anniversary of the first settlement of the Swedish people on the American continent. They have since successfully colonized large areas in the United States and in Canada.

Tacitus, the great Roman historian, in 68 A. D., just 1,840 years ago, wrote of the sturdy Swedes under a strong King, cultivating wheat and other products of the soil with industry and patience.

Intelligent hard workers, good citizens and loyal kindly friends, the Swedish people have added much to the wealth of the United States and Canada, and so have enhanced the welfare of the two peoples.

It is interesting to note too, that 1938 is also the 160th anniversary of the death of the great Swedish botanist Linnaeus, who originated an entirely new method for classification of plants; which new method helped much towards improvement of all farm crops. Svalof, Sweden true to the heritage left by Linnaeus, today is one of the world's greatest plant breeding institutions. From Svalof came Victory oats, so much prized in Canada.

So hats off this year, 1938, to the Swedes in token of their fine accomplishments, and say akaal to them whenever the opportunity offers.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Government attempting to reduce wheat acreage 32 per cent -- Poland considering state wheat reserve -- Grasshoppers and hail damage Western Canadian crops -- Uncertain prospects for corn in Danube Basin -- Officially admitted Russian spring wheat badly damaged by heat and drought -- Rust damage to American and Canadian spring wheat crops confirmed.

Following factors have tended to lower price: South Africa makes first corn export in several months -- Broomhall's 1938 European wheat estimate larger than 1937 -- Poland considering export subsidy -- Continental offers of feed barley from Russia, Turkey, Poland, Denmark, U.S., and Danube -- Expect wheat crop in Greece of possibly record proportion -- Rains benefit Indian autumn feed grain crops -- Record citrus exports from South Africa.

Lutheran Mission-Festival.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church is celebrating its annual mission festival this coming Sunday, July 31st, in Jacobsen's grove, 9 miles west of the highway on the Westcott road and about 1½ miles south.

The German service will begin at 11 a.m. Lunch will be served by the Ladies' Aid. The English service will begin at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. Phil. Unterschultz of Calgary, one of the well-known radio preachers of the Lutheran Hour, will deliver the sermon.

You are heartily invited to attend.

WEDDINGS

VOGEL-SILVESTER

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Tuesday, July 12th in Seattle, when Effie Ada, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Silvester of Penticton, B. C., was united in marriage with Albert H. Vogel of Carstairs, Alberta, with only immediate relatives present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Fowle.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a navy blue sheer ensemble with accessories, and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

After a few weeks spent at the coast cities Mr. and Mrs. Vogel will leave to make their home at Carstairs.

BRUCE-GOLDIE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Munro, Carstairs, was the scene of a pretty wedding on the evening of Friday, July 15th, when Isobel M. M. Goldie, only daughter of Mrs. M. R. Goldie of Calgary and the late Mr. Thomas M. M. Goldie, became the wife of William C. Bruce of Didsbury. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Robert Paton of Calgary, assisted by Rev. D. St. Clair Campbell of Carstairs.

Preceded by her bridesmaids, Misses Isobel and Christine Munro, by her maid of honor, Ethel Bruce, and her little flower girl, Alice Mae Bruce, the young bride entered the living room with her brother, Mr. Gavin A. M. Goldie, who gave her in marriage.

The bride looked lovely in her gown of white taffeta and silk net. Her wedding veil, an heirloom in her mother's family was held in place by a single coronet of orange blossoms. The bridesmaids wore soft shades of pink and green, with matching ribbons in their hair. The maid of honor's gown was fashioned of pale yellow taffeta and silk net. The little flower girl was in palest blue. Mr. L. St. Clair was the groomsman.

Following the ceremony, the guests were received by the young couple and their parents. Mrs. Goldie chose for the occasion black lace with a taffeta jacket. Her corsage was of pale pink roses. Mrs. Bruce was in navy with a corsage of dark red roses. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. W. Munro and Mrs. Edward Duncan, while Mrs. J. H. Ure and Mrs. R. McCoy cut the icing. The bridesmaids served, assisted by Misses Ruth Duncan, Elizabeth Ure, Alma Gordon, Arlene Emery, Wilda Laut, Joyce Kerrison and Emily Keeley. Mr. John Bruce and Mr. Donald Munro were the ushers.

The bride travelled in a navy blue ensemble with matching accessories. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Bruce will leave for Vancouver Island where they will reside—Carstairs News

Playing For Time

Every Day War Is Postponed Makes It Less Likely

As President Benes of Czechoslovakia says, time works for peace. Every day of postponement must bring more careful calculations of chances, every day of preparation shows the picture of war in a more terrible light, and every new addition to the horrors of current wars helps to consolidate at least the opinion of the democratic nations against the aggressors. War may still come: if it is avoided, the world will owe thanks to the statesman, who, in the face of bitter attack, secured it time to think.—Toronto Telegram.

Distribution Company In London Prepared For Air Raids

Editor & Publisher, New York, says they now have an A.R.P. office in London—Air Raid Protection, we gather from a piece in the Newspaper World—which is mightily concerned with the welfare of journalism in the event of a hostile air attack. The Government has emphasized that "in an emergency the continued distribution of newspapers would be a vital factor in maintaining public morale."

To date, newspapers have not taken any specific precautions, but one of the largest newspaper distribution companies of the city has an elaborate program. Truck drivers and their assistants taking papers to railheads must wear clothing which will give reasonable protection against gas. Cheap wrapping paper will be used on bundles, to be discarded if contaminated by gas. Ten per cent. of the plant staff of 3,000 people will be highly trained in anti-gas, fire, and first-aid work. Field telephones have been acquired against a breakdown in the normal public service. Storm and bicycle lanterns have been provided should public lighting fail.

Alternative space has been arranged for every department so that the landing of a bomb will not disrupt the organization, and bedrooms and canteen service will be ready to accommodate workers held in the building by a prolonged raid. The basement of the Central London building, several acres in extent, is being completely gasproofed as a shelter for the entire staff. And similar arrangements are being completed in all the firm's branch offices throughout England.

It is suggested also that newspapers' private wire systems be used as an auxiliary if a raid should damage the Post Office wires. The latter are being protected in many technical ways against destruction by bombs, with specially constructed buildings, duplicated services, and routing diagrams for connections around a damaged area.

Yes, London looks ahead—but to what?

U.S. Military Aircraft

Claim Made That It Is Superior To Rest Of The World

The United States army, placing a $14,433,196 order for 98 fighting planes, took occasion to claim that the United States is superior to the rest of the world in designing military aircraft.

The planes ordered included 13 flying fortresses such as flew in February to Buenos Aires and return, 78 smaller bombers and seven streamlined attack planes.

The planes are the first to be purchased out of the $13,000,000 congress gave the Air corps to buy 478 aircraft in the new fiscal year. About 700 new craft already were on order.

The army has some 1,400 first line planes in service now and expects to reach its goal of 2,320 of the most modern types two years hence, officials said.

The Earhart Light

Marks Tiny Howland Island Missed By Famous Flyer

A monument on a desert island and a prosaic ruling which established legal death, stood as reminders that just one year ago Amelia Earhart and Frederick J. Noonan vanished trying to fly across the vast South Pacific.

On tiny Howland island, 1,500 miles southwest of Hawaii, a bone-white lighthouse tower—the "Earhart Light"—marks the sand spit which the aviatrix missed on a hazardous leg of her world flight.

A Real Expert

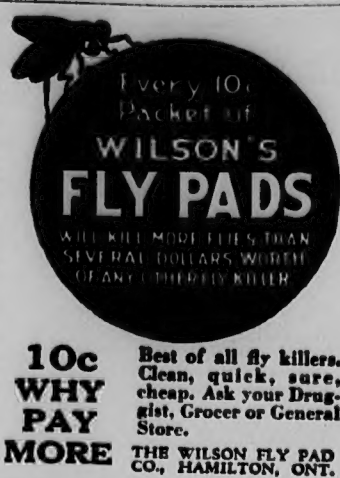

Two maids were conversing over the back fence of the suburban houses.

"I'm going to have my eyebrows plucked," said Tilly. "It's the fashion now, you know."

The other maid raised her eyebrows in surprise. "Coo," she said in wonderment, "won't that be very expensive?"

"No," said Tilly, putting on a refined air, "my boy friend who works at the poultry shop down the road is going to do it."

Connecticut first raised tobacco between 1640 and 1660. 2263

Australia's Marriage Rate Has Not Changed In 30 Years

Statistics reveal that Australians are the most stable marrying people in the world.

Neither the World War, the modern pace of living nor economic crises have changed their ideas on the subject, and their marriage rate is the same as in 1908.

The latest figures show 8.4 marriages per 1,000 of population. The only countries with a higher marriage rate now are Russia, South Africa, Germany, Denmark and Rumania. Italy is lower.

Got His Picture

But Effort Put Candid Camera Man In Hospital

The candid camera craze put Jack Bartlett, 46, Salt Lake City, in a hospital. Motorcycle Patrolman E. N. Olsson said he agreed to let Bartlett take a "head-on" picture of him. The photographer got excited as Olsson's motorcycle approached. He attempted to dodge, so did Olsson. Bartlett suffered a brain concussion.

NEW HIGH OR LOW-BACK SLIP By Anne Adams

Definitely—this is a slip that's in a class by itself! The Pattern (No. 4842) will make you want to get your scissors out immediately—for it's so simple—and the illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions are so easy to follow. See how well shaped the front and back panels are, and how the bodice and shoulders are cut in one piece so that the straps will not slip down. It's a style to be your favorite, for it has a "smoothing" influence on the figure, and won't twist or bind. Make several slips in durable silks or synthetics, if you want your Summer and early Fall frocks to fit superbly, without a wrinkle underneath to spoil their perfection.

Pattern 4842 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 2½ yards 39 inch fabric.

The Red Cross In China

Splendid Relief Work Being Conducted For War Refugees

The June issue of the Canadian Red Cross Junior reports additions to its Chinese Relief Fund from Quebec, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, which is a reminder of the progress made by this great organization since the setting up, last November of "The Shanghai International Red Cross". This was a committee organized to co-ordinate the relief efforts of the several charitable agencies in that city.

To-day, the S.I.R.C. is guiding eleven relief organizations and directly supporting 153 refugee camps conducted by these bodies, according to the monthly bulletin of the League of Red Cross Societies issued from Paris. The Shanghai Committee is feeding some 128,400 mouths, teaching some 30,000 refugee children, has distributed nearly 200,000 articles of clothing, and has been entrusted with a relief fund amounting to 1,286,538 Chinese dollars.

The work of the S.I.R.C. has been entrusted to five committees designated as follows: Visiting Committee, Education Committee, Wounded Soldiers Committee, Medical Committee and Committee on Surrounding Areas. The Medical Committee has a number of mobile clinics working in the refugee camps, and is conducting four hospitals for sick refugees. It also makes grants to leading Shanghai hospitals for the care of refugee patients.

The Committee on Surrounding Areas is keeping in touch with conditions at the theatre of war, and has made grants to assist relief work among war refugees in Sungkiang and Soochow. Of the sums received to date, the S.I.R.C. has allocated $654,165 for the care of refugees, $131,906 for work among wounded soldiers, $89,795 for medical supplies, $19,379 for grants to civilian hospitals, $15,000 to the Chinese Medical Association, and $20,000 for relief work in Nanking. According to the Visiting Committee, there is now no acute shortage of clothing among the refugees in the majority of the organized camps. On February 1st, the Wounded Soldiers Committee opened a new hospital for crippled soldiers.

A Geographical Term

In Reality Place Named Budapest Does Not Exist

The name "Budapest" is an abstraction; it is purely a geographical and administrative term, meaning the Hungarian capital. In reality it does not exist. There is only the right side of the Danube River called Buda, and the left called Pest, and the difference between the two banks is about 700 years. Buda is 900 years old; Pest at most is 200. A lovely old bridge spans the river, and the man who built it was an English engineer, Adam Clark. His name is comparatively unknown in his country of origin; but in Buda there is a beautiful Old-World square called after him. Pest is pronounced "Pesht."

Who Are The Foreigners

There is a local statute which forbids the sale of firecrackers to Americans in San Francisco's Chinatown.

A news reporter laughingly tells of an incident which occurred during a Chinese New Year's celebration. He wished to obtain some photographs of a Chinese girl holding strings of the firecrackers; so he dashed into a near-by store and loudly gave an order for them.

The portly Chinese in charge of the shop shouted back just as loudly, "We do not sell firecrackers to foreigners!"

(Which sounds something like the voluble reporter who said to the big Indian Chief, who had just come in to visit the Chicago World's Fair, "Well, Chief, what do you think of our country?")

"The amateur conjurer is apt to talk too much when performing a simple trick," says a professional. Nevertheless, a polite audience will pretend to enjoy the patter of his little feat.

On the first run of the new streamlined Twentieth Century to Chicago, the honored guests who were invited to make the initial ride swiped $87 worth of finger-bowls as souvenirs.

Less than 2,000 of England's 70,000 blind are under 16 years old.

Always Gets It Back

Conductor Has Lent Thousands Of Dollars To Passengers

History has it that a party named Diogenes once conducted an exhaustive but vain search for some honest folk. It seems a pity that Diogenes did this so long ago because there's a conductor around Chicago who could have put the lantern-bearing, ancient on the right track by pointing out passengers on a railroad train.

The modern conductor is John L. Reece, who in his 45 years of service with the New York Central System has lent thousands of dollars to financially embarrassed train riders—and has never lost a cent of his investment in faith in human nature.

During the Century of Progress Exposition, for example, Reece produced the means of 17 persons to get back home. Various events brought these 17 to their predicament, such as a lost purse, a picked pocket or perhaps too grand a time for the extent of their resources.

"They'd come up to me at the gate in the La Salle Street Station," said Reece, who is a conductor on the Twentieth Century Limited "and ask me how they could get home. I'd tell 'em to get on the train—and I'd advance the fare. They all returned the money to me, with nice letters of appreciation."

On one occasion Reece lent $300 to a woman who was on her way to California from New York. She'd exhausted her funds and didn't have cash enough for breakfast. Reece took care of that, scurried around among his friends in the station and gathered $300 for his passenger.

"She wanted to give me a couple of diamond rings for security," Reece relates. "But I didn't want to be bothered. A few days after I had the money back with an extra $50—and when I visited California a big car was at my disposal."

Runaway youngsters, old ladies carried past their station or on the wrong trains—like the one who became confused at Elkhart and took the Century thinking she was getting on the "old road" local train which stood alongside—Reece has dug into his pockets hundreds of times to care for them. And never had reason to regret it.

Miss, famous as the laziest cat in the world because it would not get up to lap a saucer of milk, but instead dipped in its paw then licked the paw, has died in Odense, Denmark, birthplace of Hans Christian Andersen the fairy-tale writer.

Jack: "Almost everything, I guess, except sleeping sickness."

WHAT HO!

—By—

She scanned the gilt-and-mirrored room. There was a profusion of Americans, a rich variety of Americans there, but not the one American she sought.

Lady Rosa took a table on the balcony commanding a view of the room, ordered a glass of sherry, a turbot bonne femme, and a salad, and kept watch. At a table below her a man emerged from the shadow of a wine card as big as a baby's blanket; and then she did see a familiar face, her father's. Opposite him was Mrs. Clara Martha Phelps, looking twice as patrician as the earl, and nearly as happy. Lady Rosa resisted the temptation to drop a lump of ice on her sire's pate. If they saw her they'd ask her to join them and she did not feel that she was good company just then.

A smacking sound made her turn. Behind her in a corner, alone at a table for four, a man was smacking his lips over a glass of Burgundy, and making ready to perform a major operation on a steak the size of a dictionary. The diner was rather steaklike himself, with a medium rare complexion, porterhouse jowls, and a hamburger neck. On seeing Rosa he got up and rolled toward her, an avalanche of beef. Stopping at her table he said,

"Lady Rosa Bingley?"

"Yes."

"Punder's my name."

"Oh, yes, Mr. Punder. I remember you, of course."

"Where's that Yank?" Punder shot at her.

"I presume you mean Mr. Ernest Bingley."

"That's just who I mean."

"I don't know," Rosa said.

"Hah! You dont, hey? Done a bunk, has he?"

"He has left Bingley Castle, if that's what you mean, Mr. Punder; and I believe he is somewhere in London. I don't know where. I wish I did."

"So do I," said Punder. "If I lay my hands on that dirty, little beggar—"

"Mr. Bingley is neither dirty, little, nor a beggar," said Rosa, warmly.

"Hah! Ain't he?" said Punder.

"Quite the contrary."

"That's what you think, said Punder."

"It is."

"Well, you're wrong. He's a fake. He's an impostor. He's a nobody without a penny to his name," declared Punder.

"I'm afraid, Mr. Punder, your steak has gone straight to your head," said Rosa.

"Hah, has it?" said Punder. "Well, one of my men just phoned me from Paris. He had a talk with O. G. Wyncoop. Seems Wyncoop is hoping mad because he's classed as an undesirable alien on account of what his kid did here. Not—" threw in Mr. Punder parenthetically "that old Wyncoop isn't a robber himself—"

"I fail to see how this applies to Mr. Ernest Bingley."

"Oh, you'll see," said Punder. "The net of it is that Bingley is no more a millionaire than that fish on your plate. He's just a country bumpkin that stuffs pet canaries for a living in a village in Iowa, or Ohio, or Ohiohoo or some such place. But he's a sly cove, and he sold up his shop to come over here and try out some of his cute games on us slow Britishers. Well, he took me in. To the tune of twenty thousand pounds—"

"Are you accusing Mr. Bingley of stealing?" asked Rosa, pale as the table-cloth.

"No. Not exactly," said Punder. "He broke no law, or I'd set Scotland Yard on him. It was a legitimate enough business deal, no shadier than many another. He caught me napping. Fooled Pete Tyler, too. Pete didn't lose anything, but I did. I don't mind the twenty thousand quid, of course; but I hate being stung. I got pride. And when I catch up with young Bunco Bingley he'll feel the weight of my beetle-squashers."

Mr. Punder brandished a size 12A shoe.

"Are you sure, Mr. Punder," said Rosa, quietly, "that Mr. Bingley has no money?"

"Of course he has," said Punder. "Didn't I just tell you he short-changed me out of twenty-thousand? I don't quite see why he made me hand over those notes instead of cash. Of course, by now, he's had them discounted, and has probably lit out for Paris."

"That's what you think," said Lady Rosa.

"Huh?"

She did not explain.

"Mr. Punder," she said, "have you no idea at all where he might be?"

Punder began to wheeze with gusty laughter.

"What did the rascal do to you?" he asked.

"That's my affair, I think."

More laughter shook the portly Punder.

"Sorry, but I don't see the joke," said Rosa.

"Ho ho ho ho!" chuckled Punder. "That little knave doesn't miss a trick. Takes 'em all, high and low, in his stride. Well, as we're in the same boat, let's join forces."

"No, thank you."

"Well well. I'll hunt and you hunt. But if I find him first—"

"You'll grind his bones to make your bread, I suppose."

"Ho ho ho ho," roared Punder. "That I will. If you get on his track, just ring me up at my Park Lane house, will you?"

"Yes, if you'll notify me the minute you find him."

"It's a bargain."

"I'm staying with the Countess of Bathberry in Onslow Square," Rosa told him. "And now, Mr. Punder, hadn't you better get back to your steak?"

"I expect so," said Punder. "Do you like hash?"

"Yes, why?"

"That's what I'm going to make out of E. Bingley," said Punder, and returned to his steak.

Lady Rosa was sipping her coffee when she heard a voice call out, "Yoo hoo, Rosa, you hoo!"

Her father, on his way out of the restaurant, had spied her.

She waved her napkin at him.

"I'll come up," yelled the earl, to the surprise of the sedater diners.

Come up to the balcony he did, and Clara-Martha Phelps came with him.

"Rosa," he said, "meet your mother."

Mrs. Phelps giggled.

"I mean to say," went on the earl, "she's going to be in a few months."

"Bless you, my children," smiled Rosa.

"We're to be married in Vienna," said the earl, "just as soon as Clara-Martha finishes her psychoanalysis. Then ho! for a honeymoon in Venice and back to Bingley Castle in time to water the tulip bulbs."

"I congratulate you both."

Mrs. Phelps placed a kiss on Rosa's ear.

"I've always wanted a daughter," she said.

"I say," said the earl, "any trace of old Ernest?"

"I haven't found him," Lady Rosa said, "but I've found him out."

"Eh! Riddles?" said the earl. "Tell me the answer quickly. We're late for the panto."

"Tell you later. Run along now."

"Come, ducky," said the earl, giving his arm to Mrs. Phelps.

"Yes, Georgie-porgie," said Clara-Martha Phelps.

When they had gone, Rosa summoned her waiter.

"Please tell Max that Lady Rosa Bingley would like to see him for a moment," she said.

"Very good, m'lady."

Max presently approached her table. He had the air and profile of an emperor entering Rome in a triumphal chariot. Max spoke nine languages, and knew enough about the British nobility, it was said, to make a fortune by blackmail, if he were so inclined. He wasn't. He preferred to be the major domo at Nero's. Besides, he had a fortune.

"Good evening, my lady," he said.

"May I offer you my felicitations?"

"On what, Max?"

"On the successful culmination of his lordship's romance."

"Max, you know everything," laughed Rosa.

"I regret I do not know where you can find Mr. Ernest Bingley," Max said.

"How do you know I want to find him?"

"A little bird—"

"Meaning my father?"

"Yes."

"Max, let me pose a question."

"Please do, my lady."

"Suppose you were in London—"

"I am."

"And broke—"

"I have been."

"What would you do? Where would you go?"

"Meaning me, or a hypothetical character?"

"Meaning a young American."

Max gave thought to the matter, as if he were Tiberius, considering a matter of state.

"He is without funds?" he queried.

"Practically. Nothing but a return ticket to the States, I think."

"What I did," said Max, "when I first came to London as a young man, and a very poor young man, was to sit on a bench on the Thames Embankment and plan how to become a rich one. On the benches there, my lady, one finds many who were rich, and some who are going to be."

"I'll try there," said Rosa, getting up.

"Surely not alone?"

"Yes."

"It is a vile night."

"No matter. Thank you, Max."

"Always at your service, my lady."

Rosa paid her bill and stepped out into the fog.

Provided New Words

Several Things Have Been Named After English Peers

According to So You're Going Magazine those amiable Englishmen who write to the newspapers have discovered a new one this year: Namely, what English peers have had their names turned into new words in the language? One begins, of course, with the Earl of Sandwich, who wouldn't leave the gaming table, ordered some meat between bread slices brought in, and achieved an unexpected fame thereby.

But there are apparently quite a lot of others, including the seventh Earl of Cardigan, who got a sweater named after him, the Duke of Wellington, who ended up as a pair of boots and a cooking apple, and a certain Crimean war general named Raglan, who turned out to be an overcoat.

Mechanized Viewpoint

Modern transport, press and film are creating in England what Earl Baldwin describes as a "standardized suburban mechanized mind". We already have too much of that here, states the Farmer's Advocate. Rural people accept all too placidly the urban viewpoint, and wholesome rural independence is becoming inarticulate.

A stone coffin containing laurel leaves and a skeleton believed to be that of a 13th century abbot was discovered in the ruined chapter house of the monastery at Arbroath Abbey, Scotland.

It is reported that a light sprinkle of rain makes the average road one-third more slippery than a drenching rain.

Might Reverse Decision

Question Whether Judge Would Apply Case To Himself

A recent legal decision in the United States has fallen upon jaded sports writers like manna from heaven. It appears that the umpire at a ball game in a West Virginia town called a strike. The batter felt differently about it, made a verbal protest and followed it up with a punch on the nose. The umpire took the case to court.

After hearing the testimony, the judge dismissed the case with the remark, "It is the inalienable right of a baseball player to get mad and have a fight with the umpire."

The judge has had his little day; but we are wondering what his reaction would be if some litigant in his court exercised his inalienable right to get mad at a decision and took a punch at the judge himself. Perhaps it might occur to the umpires' league to make a test case.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Railroads Of Tomorrow

Freight Trains Will Travel Faster Than To-day's Passenger Trains

Pullman Advertisement says the to-morrow of railroading will open up a new world. For not only will high speed, high-powered, bullet-nosed, streamlined trains be cutting through time on every line, but the merchandise of the world will also be carried at a speed far greater than the ordinary passenger train is travelling to-day. For your freight trains, too, will be lightweight, modern carriers, travelling with the speed of the wind.

Albinos have been known to occur among the colored races of man.

Near Sea Tragedy

Nova Scotia Fishermen Are Rescued By Danish Freighter

Two Yarmouth fishermen saw the flag of their vessel lowered to hark mast in mourning for them. The pair, John Jacquard and Burton Hemlow were dorymen aboard the Yarmouth schooner R. B. Hutt.

The Hutt left Yarmouth for the Grand Banks. When she got there, the men paired in dories and started fishing. Jacquard and Hemlow got lost in dense fog, and after drifting two days were picked up by the Danish freighter Gyda, bound for New York.

The Hutt searched for two days and failing to find the men, returned to port with a tale of tragedy. Six hours later their shipmates returned to Yarmouth—by automobile. The freighter landed them at Cape Negro, N.S., near Yarmouth.

Underground Post Office

South Australian Opal Field Has Only One In World

Coober Pedy, the remote South Australian opal field, possesses the only underground post office in the world. The prospectors live in "rooms" dug into the soft earth of the low sandstone hills. Here, too, is their bank and their post office. Coober Pedy, is the aboriginal name for white man's burrow.

A psychologist says it is no wonder school children write "boners," since words in English have so many definitions; for example, game has 15 meanings, grain has 30 fall has 29 and account has 34.

the banks of the Little Red. A short business session was held. Mrs.
Campbell and Mrs. A. Cowitz were chosen to go to the Farm Women's Week at O.S.A. next week. It was decided to hold no meeting in August. All members holding ticket books on the W.I. quilt are asked to turn them in to Mrs. A. Hogg before the 1st September, without fail. Mrs. Evans gave the report on the recent constituency conference.
A bountiful lunch was served at the end of the afternoon and everyone enjoyed the ice cream and lemonade.
Snapshots were taken of the group but the real picnic began when the cars re-crossed the river and got waterlogged so that ropes and team had to be commandeered to pull them out again. The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Hogg.
